

工作である。

DESCRIPTION

lominating idea. A paragraph is complete alone, but it can a L paragraph is a group of related sentences that develop part of an essay or a chapter in a book. This diagram shows th ionship of the parts that compose a book.

a group of related

SENTENCES a group

of related

WORDS

chapters or compositions a group of related

BOOK:

CHAPTER OR COMPOSITION a group of related PARAGRAPHS:

> paragraph has only one indentation. This is how a paragraph tion. Indentation signals the start of a new paragraph, and each All paragraphs begin with an empty space known as indenta-кионикиной кисконом проставляющей проставка при проставка проставк NAMES OF THE PRODUCT KANAMOONAKKEENAKALEOOKANAKAKAXXXXX. XXXXI develop its main idea without introducing too many new ideas supporting details. Nevertheless, every paragraph must adequately focus on a certain topic and develop an idea concerning that topic. which should have paragraphs of their own. Each paragraph must longer to express and develop than others because of the amount of depends on the central idea that is developed. Some ideas take There is no rule for how long a paragraph should be. The length kinds of organization that fulfill different needs. wants to communicate to the reader. You will practice different tion. The organization, like the length, depends on what the writer Just as the length of a paragraph varies, so does its organiza-

ORGANIZATION

The Three Parts of a Paragraph must infer the main idea from the discussion. However, for now we discussion or conclusion. Sometimes it is not stated, and the reader will be practicing the introductory topic sentence.) not always stated in the introduction; sometimes it is part of the concerning the topic of the paragraph. (Note: The topic sentence is writer tells the reader what he is going to discuss. This is conveyed furroduction, discussion, and conclusion. In the introduction the Most paragraphs are composed of three parts; we will call them the by a (topic sentence) The topic sentence expresses the main idea

Society's responsibility toward the individua

TOPIC SENTENCE

Society is responsible to a certain degree the well-being of the individua paragraph because it contains explanatory and supporting deta that relate to the topic sentence in the Introduction. The middle part, or the discussion, is the longest section of t opportunity for work education and training landividual's contributions to soci and organizes them in a logical pattern The writer chooses details to elaborate the idea about the to

THE PARAGRAPH SO FAR

clety should also give individuals an education that will have the opportunity to work and support themselves. Soprepare them for a profession. Then, as productive being of the individual. For example, all people should human beings they can make the society they live in Society is responsible to a certain degree for the well-similar to the introduction, is not very long. One or two sente to the main idea expressed at the beginning of the paragraph. St times it summarizes the details in the discussion. The conclut times the conclusion is a restatement of the topic sentence; so are usually enough The conclusion completes the discussion and frequently re

CONCLUSION: By encouraging people to fulfill their own a tive as a whole. tions, a society grows stronger and more pro

THE COMPLETED PARAGRAPH:

have the opportunity to work and support themselves. Soclety should also give individuals an education that wil being of the individual. For example, all people should prepare them for a profession. Then, as productive Society is responsible to a certain degree for the well-

(J)